

New Dietary Assessment Course

BY INTAKE

intake

Intake is offering a comprehensive dietary assessment curriculum to train a cohort of new leaders in the field of dietary assessment.

The curriculum comprises 11 different modules, covering all aspects of dietary assessment – from survey planning and design to pre-survey work, the preparation of dietary reference data, and dietary data collection, processing, analysis, and reporting.

The teaching modality involves presentations, readings, practical exercises, homework, active discussion time, and knowledge consolidation quizzes. The course will provide participants with the opportunity to interact, discuss with, and work on different homework exercises related to dietary assessment with other committed course participants from around the world.

This year, the course will be taught in English remotely over Zoom. Each class session will be 1.5 hours, 2x per week: Tuesday and Thursday 8:00-9:30am ET.

The full course curriculum duration is ~ 8 months. Students are expected to participate actively in the full course curriculum. A certificate will be provided to participants who successfully complete the full course curriculum.

The course is intended for:

- ▶ Individuals from low- and middle-income countries (LMICs)
- ▶ Students and career professionals at any stage: early, mid, late
- ▶ Individuals with a commitment to take forward dietary assessment work in LMICs in the future
- ▶ Individuals who can make the commitment to attend and participate actively in full course curriculum

There is no cost to participate in the course, but you must apply to be considered for enrollment in the course. We aim to enroll 50-60 students in the first cohort.

The application process will be open from March 1, 2024 – April 15, 2024. The course will begin in mid to late June 2024, exact data still to be determined.

Application information will be available on the What's New Page of the Intake website on March 1, 2024.
